Wednesday night from the VHS and DVD for the first faces,” he said in 2004, when the show’s last episode aired.

Rolf Jensen

Rolf Jensen, 73, of Indianola, Iowa, died on June 13, 2018. Services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 17, 2018 at the American Legion Post 18, Indianola. Burial will be in a military cemetery.

Leann M. Rockford

Leann M. Rockford, 50, of Champaign, Ill., passed away Oct. 27, 2018 at her home. She was born in Champaign on Aug. 30, 1968 and grew up in Urbana, Ill. She graduated from University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana and was employed by a non-profit organization in Champaign-Urbana.

Leann’s father, Ronald Rockford, passed away in 1984. She was survived by her mother, Debbie Rockford; two sisters, Mary Rockford and Lisa Rockford; and a brother, Joe Rockford. She was also survived by her life partner, Tim Schwab.

Leann was a dedicated and passionate member of the Champaign-Urbana community. She was actively involved in the local LGBTQ+ community and was a strong advocate for equal rights and acceptance. She was a member of the Champaign-Urbana Pride Center and was involved in many events and organizations that promoted diversity and acceptance.

Leann was a talented musician and singer. She was known for her soulful voice and her ability to connect with others through her music. She often performed at local events and was a regular performer at the Champaign-Urbana Pride Center’s annual pride events.

Leann was also a dedicated and passionate volunteer. She volunteered at local organizations that supported LGBTQ+ individuals, and she was a member of the volunteer committee at the Champaign-Urbana Pride Center.

Leann was a beloved member of the Champaign-Urbana community and will be deeply missed by all who knew her.

Contact: Rochelle Simpson | 815-937-3367 | obituary@daily-journal.com

Death notices

Roy Clark, country virtuoso and ‘Hoochie’ star, dies

Roy Clark, country virtuoso and ‘Hoochie’ star, dies

The Associated Press

Country star Roy Clark, the two-time Grammy winner who headed the country stars’ annual Opry salute for 20 years and was known as the “Mr. of Country Music” died Monday morning at his home in Grant Park, Ill., a family said.

Clark was 85.

According to Clark’s family, Wanda Jo Clark, he died in his sleep from natural causes at about 6:30 a.m.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.

Roy Clark, the young star of the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s who would later become a country music legend, has died. He was 85.

Clark was born in 1933 in Mountain Pleasant, Mo. and grew up in the rural Ozarks.

He began his music career in the 1950s playing guitar on the “Grand Ole Opry” in Nashville, Tenn., and later became a regular performer on the “Hee Haw” television show in the 1970s.